

Make Yourself Heard With a Current Will

Are you one of the 60% of Americans who do not have a current will? Having a will that is up to date means your estate will be distributed according to your wishes. For those without a current will, the state must follow a plan established through legislation. Chances are the state's plan does not completely reflect your personal desires and intentions.

A current will is your last opportunity to express your values to loved ones and society in general. It allows you to care for heirs according to their special needs and, if desired, to make a gift to charitable organizations that have touched your life.

If you are considering making a special charitable gift, think of the advantages you'll get designing it by will.

During your lifetime, a bequest is private and changeable at any time, without depriving you of the use of assets or income. If you wish to include Phoebe in your will, please contact us with any questions. We can help see that your bequest impacts Phoebe by targeting any or all of its communities.
